

Search Terms:

Freelance proofreading

Online Proofreading jobs

Beginner proofreading jobs

Proofreading positions

Editing jobs

Content developer

Copy editing

Academic editor

Book editor/editing

1. ProofreadingServices.com

There are full-time and part-time remote positions available, with pay ranging from $19—$46 per hour. To sign up, you will need to complete a 20-minute test on this site.

2. Wordvice

There are remote, part-time jobs available on this site, and this company asks that you let it know your expected pay rate in your application. You will need to submit your application and resume, complete an editing sample, and then you will be notified of your results via email. It does ask that you are enrolled in or have completed a graduate degree program.

3. Gramlee

Gramlee says that it is always looking for exceptional editors and that you will edit from home if you are selected to work for this company. To apply, you will need to submit its Employee Application form and wait to hear back if you have been approved.

4. Scribe Writing

Scribe Writing (previously called Book in a Box) is a company that takes on freelance editors for book editing. The great thing about this site is that if it doesn't currently have any open vacancies, you can set up email alerts for when it does.

5. Scribbr

To join Scribbr's team, you will need to follow this process: Take a language quiz. If you pass, Scribbr will review your CV and your motivation statement to see if you will fit in well with the team. Complete a language editing assignment. If you have passed the test assessment, you will be invited to join the Scribbr Academy. You will need to complete two simulation orders, and then you will be ready for real orders.

6. EditFast

You will need to complete the registration process and pass the EditFast review, but whether or not you get work depends on clients choosing you for the project. Payments to editors will be made through PayPal. EditFast gets 40% of the final total project price.

7. Writer's Relief

Writer's Relief is an author submission service that helps creative writers to get published. To apply, fill in its application form, but please note that it only accepts 2% of the people who apply.

8. Wordfirm Inc.

Wordfirm Inc. provides editorial services and publication production. You will have to fill out a lengthy application, so make sure you give yourself time to sit down and go through it.

9. Edit911

The qualifications that are required to apply to work here are a PhD in English or another writing-intensive discipline; a published scholar, with demonstrable talent and skills as a writer. If you meet these requirements, you can send Edit911 a sample of your writing and your resume, to which it will respond within 48 hours.

10. SmartBrief

Keep an eye on this one, as it occasionally has openings for work-at-home copy editors. The pay is $15 per hour.

11. American Journal Experts

All of the positions are remote and can be done from anywhere in the world. You can find a list of its job openings and apply for whichever are best for you.

12. CACTUS Communications

SCACTUS are currently recruiting for Freelance specialist editors: Freelance pharma/regulatory editor, Freelance alt text editors, Scientific reviewers: physical sciences and pharma. It does ask that you have a relevant degree in the subject that you would be editing.

13. Polished Paper

Polished Paper (which, by the way, has an amazing looking website!) says that it has opportunities for exceptional editors. You will need to sign up, upload your resume, and then complete its 35-question test.

14. Domainite

This is a site that's not very well paid, but if you are brand new to proofreading, it can be a good place to get started.